

WORKS OF ART
ON EXHIBITIONUtah Institute Preparing For Display of Fine Paintings.

MODELS IN CLAY AND BRONZE

SCENES OF FAR AWAY LANDS
REPRODUCED IN COLOR.

Picturesque scenes of nearly every part of the world will be spread between the four walls of one room in Salt Lake City today. All day Saturday pictures were being received in Social hall on State street for the exhibition to be given by the Utah Institute of Art. Some of the most expensive pictures have been received, but there is already a confusion of frames, models and gorgeous canvases. The work of hanging the pictures will commence in earnest today and the paintings which have been opened were being arranged Saturday for their proper place on the wall.

Without moving a foot one could look upon bleak ocean-scapes of the north, or upon blue tropical skies in the south. Brooks danced in the sunlight, shady forests, with a mass of flowers in the distance, untroubled lakes and mountain scenes, with here and there a portrait, are yet mixed in a confused disorder, but the chaos is being gradually straightened out.

Every style of art is represented from a pen and ink sketch to a handsome oil painting. One of the most effective works taken out of its packing is a painting by W. P. Burpee, entitled "The Rock and the Sea." The title suggests the picture. Under the half submerged and isolated rock the waves are beating with the fury of a recent storm. The clouds show a break in the distance and enough of the coloring to rob the picture of gloominess. The painting is valued at $1,000, and won a medal at the Paris exposition of 1900.

Browning's "October Sunset."

"October Sunset" is the title of a local picture by Wesley Browning. It is a pastel showing a harvest scene and has the true fall tint. In the foreground are shocks of golden corn. In the background in partial gloom is a farm building, and the scene is partly lighted by the dying sun.

There is also a Venetian scene, with its brilliant coloring. Boats with gaudy canvases are floating lazily on the bosom of the water, and to the left are picturesque dwellings of the people who make up this Oriental life. The shade contrasts are striking. The work is by Bruning and is valued at $100.

An odd conceit by J. B. Fairbanks shows a patch of woodland just after sundown in the early spring. The trees are still bare and a road is indistinctly traced between the rocks and trees. There is also a rugged stump and one can almost see the dampness of the night air creeping over the chilly scene. The picture is valued at $300.

Twilight Scene.

There is another twilight scene by the same artist, but the colors are brighter. A storm has just passed over the stretch of landscape, and the sky has that vivid yellow often seen after a rain in the colors of the sunset. The sky is reflected in a peaceful stream which flows dreamily through the valley. This is also a $300 effort.

In the Mirror" is the title of an excellent subject by Joseph E. Camp. It shows a peasant looking into an old mirror, and she is trying to fasten a rose in her hair. The expression is good and the coloring is most harmonious.

One of the most effective works yet to be seen is "Protection," a painting by Alexander Pope. It shows an elk framed in the first of the forest. His antlers are tossed in proud defiance and at his side is a doe with an expression of timid curiosity. The coloring is remarkably good and there is a brilliant vitality to the coloring which adds to the animation of the picture.

There is nothing in the title of "Twilight," a painting by Frank W. Benson, to suggest the character of the subject. A woman in evening gown is sitting at the table in a dimly lit room. Her elbow is on the table and her chin is resting in her hand. She is evidently waiting and the brown study into which she has fallen suggests the romantic thoughts of the subject. The tone is excellent and the colors are well placed.

Massing of Colors.

At its side was an impressionistic effect by W. P. Burpee, entitled "Sunrise." Perhaps no style of art has attracted so much attention as this indistinct massing of colors and hazy tracing of subjects. The picture shows a foreign village and across the bay the sun shines upon the bare mountains. The trees which shade the cottages give a tropical effect to the scene. The coloring is excellent and the artist has caught the inspiration of the scene.

"The White Birch" shows a highly colored effect by John Hall. Back of the twin birches is a forest and the sunlight filters through the leaves. In bold contrast to this picture is a northern coast scene by Fairbanks. The waves are dashing against the frowning cliffs and the gloomy clouds indicate an approaching storm.

Charles F. Pierce has a panoramic scene entitled "Mountain Pasture." The sun is shining on a stony meadow. Beyond are the sloping hills and the cows are feeding under the spreading branches of a large tree. The work is valued at $200.

"Wash Day in Holland."

A water color by Melbourne M. Hollan shows a "Wash Day in Holland." In the doorway of the stone courtyard sits a woman with feet encased in wooden shoes.

Perhaps one of the most stunning effects yet uncovered is "The Girl in White," by Frank W. Benson. The subject is resting under the shadows of night-hidden branches. Her eyes are partly closed and back of her the scene is lost in the darkness of the hour.

There are some clever modellings. One of them is entitled "The Tackler." It is the second plaster model attempted by the artist, Fairbanks. Cyrus E. Dalrymple, formerly of Utah, has two busts on exhibition, and there is a bronze statue entitled "The Medicine Man." It is an equestrian figure.

Mary Teasdale, president of the art institute of Utah has a beautiful sculpture in the quaking aspens. Another rich effect is the fleur de lis by Mrs. Alice M. Horn. The coloring is harmonious and the drape of the dainty petals is delightfully real.

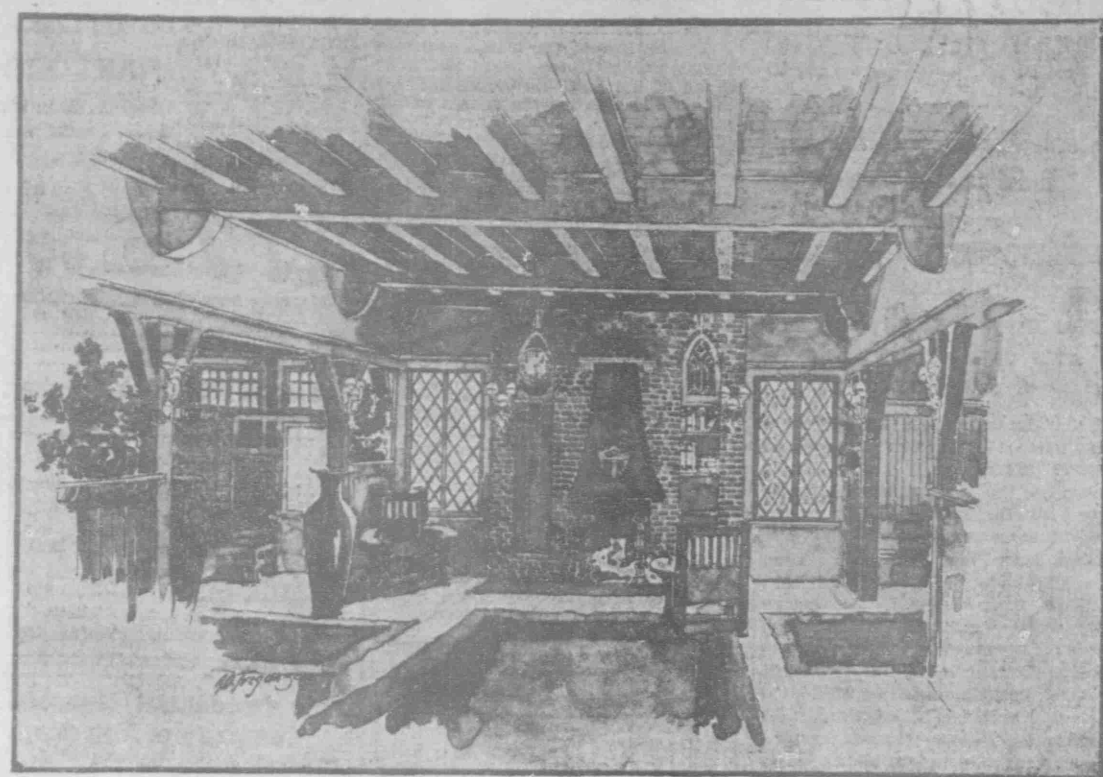

There are pen and ink sketches, showing church designs by W. H. Lepper, a sepia-coloring of "The Billiard Room" and other effects of art which will lend variety to the display which promises to be an exceedingly fine one. The Boston paintings are nearly all uncovered. The New York exhibit has arrived, but is not all unpacked.

There is no mineral water in the market now to be compared with the "IDAN-HA."

RIEGER & LINDLEY, Distributors.

The Burnt Wood Clock in Willis & Horne's window will be raffled Monday p.m., 16th, between 8 and 10 o'clock.

INTERIOR OF UNIVERSITY CLUB.

The above picture is a view of the interior of the new University club building, looking into the reception hall from the front entrance, and showing the dining room just beyond. The rooms are patterned after the old English style with hard wood floors and beam ceilings, and the walls are finished in rough cast plaster and burlap.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Maccabees.

Utahian tent No. 12 is going to make good its resolution to add forty new members to the tent during the month of March. At its last review on Wednesday evening nine new members were added, and a class of thirteen will be on hand for next Wednesday, leaving three more reviews this month to complete the number. The uniform rank is secured, and the tent greatly in accomplishing the good work. Sir Knight McNamara gave an interesting talk on the good work the fraternal orders were doing in this city in the protection of the home.

Woodmen of the World.

Salt Lake camp 33 held a card party and social dance last Tuesday evening for all Woodmen and their lady friends. The affair was largely attended and every-thing went off in a most pleasant evening.

Camp 44 had a very large and enthusiastic meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 27. The camp got through with the business of the evening and at 8 o'clock turned the meeting over to the entertainment committee, who presented a program of songs, recitations and games.

Foresters of America.

Court Wanchuck No. 2 of Ogden held an interesting meeting on Wednesday evening. Organized Harrington was present and made a short but interesting address. In Ogden for a brief time to add members to the court. The members are to meet on the 11th of next month, and a grand ball will be given in honor of the grand court delegates, who will convene at Ogden. A social session was given on the evening of March 5, which was largely attended. Songs, recitations and games were presented. The court is in a very active condition, and the members are all working for the benefit of the order.

Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Ogden lodge No. 13 held a well attended meeting on the evening of March 1 and initiated one member. This lodge has a membership of 173, a large proportion of whom are leading business and professional men of Ogden. A social session was given on the evening of March 5, which was largely attended. Songs, recitations and games were presented. The court is in a very active condition, and the members are all working for the benefit of the order.

A. O. U. W.

Salt Lake Valley lodge No. 12 met as usual last Thursday night and had a very good meeting. It would take more very bad weather to keep the boys away from the meetings held by this lodge. The coming smoker to be given by the lodge on Friday evening next, March 12, is a very popular subject with the boys.

I. O. O. F.

A degree team has been organized by Ogden lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., and in the future all the work will be done in its own lodge room. Now paraphernalia have been ordered and the lodge is getting in shape to show the balance of the ceremony just how to do it. The lodge is in a very active condition, and its treasury is in good shape and its membership is increasing.

Royal Neighbors.

Royal Neighbors of America held a very interesting meeting last Friday evening, after which the gentlemen furnished for cream and cake. Neighbors Paulgo will give a shadow social at their home on Thursday evening, March 11.

Highlanders.

Last Friday evening was an enthusiastic one for the fair ladies and valiant clansmen. New refugees are coming in every week and from present indications Utah castle No. 33 will, in the near future, be among the most flourishing of the order. The work the degree team is being gradually perfected, and being a part of the initiation the new refugees have a taste of Scotch hospitality and an insight to some events in Scottish history which occurred about seven centuries ago, and which are as immortal as the songs of Robert Burns.

sters Turned in a Fire Alarm Yesterday.

MEETINGS FOR MEN.

Features of the Y. M. C. A. All Over the Country.

Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., secretary of the evangelistic committee of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, is now conducting a series of services in Toledo, O. In the course of his address to a large assembly of men Sunday afternoon, he declared that the spirit of evangelism was not dead among the men of the great cities of North America, and cited the remarkable work that has been developed in the last few years by the Young Men's Christian association in its special evangelistic meetings for men.

"I have been connected with the Young Men's Christian association from my youth up and intimately associated with them in their work for young men. They have always been intensely earnest in their evangelistic effort, and have constantly studied the needs as well as the temptations of men. With enterprise and persistence they have adapted their services to reach the largest number of men of the cities, railroads and colleges of the country. Since the appointment of specialists to conduct these meetings for years ago, immense men's meetings in theatres have been developed and sustained Sunday after Sunday, crowding the largest theatres in the cities.

"I am indeed surprised myself to find even in the city of Washington, a place which has been supposed to be the least responsive to evangelistic effort, to find that for two years a great service has been held with an attendance often exceeding 2,500 men and averaging for the winter over 1,500. The most notable men in Washington are found in constant attendance, participating in the actual service, and the enthusiasm which characterized the old Moody meetings. Since Jan. 1, 1900 men have in these meetings declared their purpose of leading Christian lives.

"In the old city of Baltimore a series of men's meetings has been averaging over 1,000 men each week. Here over 500 men have signed cards expressing the purpose of leading a Christian life since Nov. 1, and pastors report constant accessions to their churches through these services. Conservative old Springfield, Mass., often gathers over 1,500 men at its men's meetings. Kansas City has averaged 1,300 men a week for three months, and in New York Carnegie hall is often packed with great audiences of men, who listen to the discussions of great moral questions.

"Indeed, the associations spare no expense of effort or money for the effectiveness, engaging the best musical talent, and often circulating 40,000 invitations for a single service beside posters, newspaper advertising, etc., to attract the attention and attendance of men. In some places at least 300 men are engaged on different committees working up these meetings. The addresses for the most part are straightforward, simple, manly appeals to the hearts and consciences of men, and without wavering or apology men are urged to take an immediate stand for what is clean, manly and Christian.

"Probably the man who is most successful in this work for men in this country is Fred B. Smith. For at least forty-five Sundays in the year he is addressing audiences of 500 to 3,000 men and last year over 1,500 men expressed their purpose to surrender their lives to the Christian life at the meetings conducted by him. No proportion of these men are leaders in the social, intellectual and business life of their communities. This is one of the most convincing demonstrations of the fact that the old Gospel has not lost its power, and where men unite with courage and power in undertakings of large purpose, large results follow. What the Young Men's Christian association has demonstrated is possible in every city and town in this country."

Mr. Smith will speak in the Salt Lake theatre next Monday night, and will give the Young Men's Christian association. At 2:30 he will give his address to men only and at 8 o'clock will address an open meeting at the same place.

REBELS WIN VICTORY.

Panama, March 8.—A cablegram from San Salvador says that the Honduran government forces, under the command of General Ezequiel Ferrera and General Lopez, have been defeated by the revolutionary forces supporting General Bonilla. General Ferrera was killed and General Lopez and his staff were taken prisoners.
